Stanley returned to his hole. It wasn't Mr. Pendanski had even said his fossil was He slammed his shovel into the ground and another piece of earth.

After a while, he noticed X-Ray had and was watching him dig. "Hey, Caveman, let me talk to you a second," X-Ray said. Stanley his shovel and out of his hole. "Say, listen," said X-Ray. "If you find something else, give it to me, okay?"

Stanley wasn't sure what to say. X-Ray was clearly the leader of the group, and Stanley didn't want to get on his

"You're here, right?" said X-Ray.

"I've been here for almost a year. I've never found anything. You know, my eyesight's not so No one knows this, but you know why my name's X-Ray?" Stanley shrugged one shoulder.

"It's pig latin for Rex. That's all. I'm too to find anything. "

Stanley tried to remember how pig latin worked.

"I mean," X-Ray, "why should you get a day off when you've only been here a couple of days? If anybody gets a day off, it should be me. That's only, right?"

"I guess," Stanley agreed. X-Ray smiled. "You're a guy, Caveman."

Stanley his shovel. The more he thought about it, the more he was that he agreed to let X-Ray have anything he might find. If he was going to survive at Camp Green Lake, it was far more that X-Ray think he was a guy than it was for him to get one day off. Besides, he didn't expect to find anything anyway. There probably wasn't anything "of interest" out there, and even if there was, he'd never been what you could call

He slammed his blade into the ground, then another shovelful of dirt. It was a little, he thought, that X-Ray was the leader of the group, since he obviously wasn't the or the In fact, except for Zero, X-Ray was the Armpit was the Zigzag may have been than Armpit, but that was only because of his neck. Yet Armpit, and all the others, seemed to be willing to do whatever X-Ray asked of them.

As Stanley another shovelful of dirt, it occurred to him that Armpit wasn't the He, the Caveman, was

He was glad they called him Caveman. It meant they accepted him as a member of the group. He would have been even if they'd called him Barf Bag.

It was really quite to him. At school, bullies like Derrick Dunne used to him. Yet Derrick Dunne would be senseless by any of the boys here.

As he dug his hole, Stanley thought about what it would be like if Derrick Dunne had to fight Armpit or Squid. Derrick wouldn't stand a chance.

He imagined what it would be like if he became friends with all of them, and then for some reason they all went with him to his school, and then Derrick Dunne tried to steal his notebook . . . "Just what do you think you're doing?" asks Squid, as he slams his hands into Derrick Dunne's face. "Caveman's our friend," says Armpit, grabbing him by the shin collar.

Stanley played the scene over and over again in his mind, each time watching another boy from Group D Derrick Dunne. It helped him dig his hole and ease his own Whatever pain he felt was being felt ten times by Derrick.
