

Situations – Choose the Right Quantifier

Look at the following scenarios and using quantifiers produce as many sentences as you can. For example, “at the gym.”:

There are a lot of people trying to get fit.

There are some fitness trainers there who can help people.

There isn't any chocolate or Coca-Cola in the vending machines.

You might want to take a little money with you to buy a drink after you've exercised.

There are many different types of machines that you can use.

There are a few showers for you to use after you've exercised.

There is too much noise from the TV screens and videos which is distracting.

There are few people at the gym if you go late at night.

Once you've paid the membership, you need little money to use the gym regularly.

There are lots of lockers to keep your personal belongings safe.

There are some classes to improve your flexibility.

There aren't a lot of gyms in Puente Alto.

Now you try:

- 1) the airport
- 2) a football match
- 3) a cruise
- 4) an English class
- 5) the beach
- 6) a winter holiday
- 7) a birthday party
- 8) camping
- 9) a picnic
- 10) a hospital
- 11) in the kitchen
- 12) a prison