

A question of judgement

1. What did you think of the article?
2. What are the main issues?
3. What were the good and bad points?
4. How would you define good judgement?
5. What do you think of the definition given by Sir Andrew Likierman? (para. 3)
6. If you don't have the necessary expertise to make a choice who do you go to for advice?
7. How do you make your own choices?
8. When have you exercised poor judgement?
9. Do you think luck plays a part in our choices? Do you think it is, as the article says, "a huge part"?
10. Do you agree that deciding not to take action is also a choice? What sort of things do you decide not to do something about?
11. Do you think that good judgement is "innate"?
12. Do you think it is always possible to be detached when having to make a judgement call?
13. Do you think AI will ever be able to do more in terms of using judgement?
14. Final thoughts.
15. Vocabulary review - let's review this vocabulary from the article:
 - To impose (para. 1)
 - Tough calls
 - Spared
 - Wide range of fields (para. 2)
 - Out of their depth (para. 4)
 - Temptation (para. 5)
 - Cautions
 - Tends (para. 6)
 - Life crashing down
 - Innate (para. 7)
 - Breadth
 - Parallels
 - Struggle (para. 8)
 - Insights
 - Retain (para. 9)
 - Cue
 - Frisbee
 - Implicit (para. 10)
 - Trickiest